Effect of double digit interest on infrastructure projects

764. SHRI VIJAY. J. DARDA: Will the Minister of FINANCE be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government is aware that a double digit interest rate may affect the viability of infrastructure projects where the gestation period is comparatively long;

(b) if so, how the infrastructure projects are going to be funded as commercial banks generally lend for only between three to five years while infrastructure needs long term funds; and

(c) whether Government would resort to external capital borrowing on large scale in infrastructure and similar other important sectors?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF FINANCE (SHRI PAWAN KUMAR BANSAL): (a) Yes Sir, if the prime lending rates are very high then naturally the interest rates on loans for riskier and long gestation infrastructure projects would be much higher. This may indeed affect the viability of infrastructure projects.

Government is also encouraging the creation of infrastructure funds to cater to the long term finance needs of infrastructure projects. One such fund has been established under the Finance Ministry's initiative involving Citigroup, Blackstone, IDFC and IIFCL.

(c) Large scale external capital borrowings cannot be resorted to due to the overriding macroeconomic concerns of the Government but Government is examining the proposal of having a more liberal ECB regime especially for infrastructure.
